Local Cuisine

You're in for a treat as you explore the divine Mediterranean paradise of Greece where the cuisine is simple yet incredibly flavorful.

In Greece, meat is not served daily. When meat is part of the meal it is typically roasted or grilled on skewers or chopped to be cooked with vegetables in a variety of dishes.

Cheese is a large part of the Grecian diet and makes up a large portion of their protein. The Greeks often begin their day with fresh bread and a piece of cheese, generally feta, along with a cup of strong black coffee.

You'll find many fruits and vegetables on the menus in Greece, as these healthy items play a large role in the diet here.

As Greece has a beautiful and extensive coastline, it is unsurprising to discover that fresh fish and seafood are very popular here.

Moussaka, a lamb and eggplant casserole, is a dish you must try.

Sample the delicious Souvlakia, a dish comprised of meat on skewers that is quite flavorful.

For travelers with a sweet tooth, you're in luck! You must try the baklava – very thin dough stacked to create flaky little pastries, often prepared with a mixture of nuts and honey. Another popular dessert is Halvas, a grainy-textured dessert made with semolina, nuts, raisins and cinnamon.

Greece is one of the oldest wine producing regions in the world, its origins dating back to 6,500 years ago. Sample some of Greece's most reputable wines during your visit.

Our team has carefully chosen restaurants that feature local ingredients and offer regional flavors.

For meals that are not included in your itinerary, your Tour Manager will be happy to recommend eateries and local businesses that best fit your taste and needs.

It is customary to drink bottled water in Greece. Your Tour Manager will suggest convenient locations for purchasing water while on tour. Be sure to drink plenty of water throughout each day of your tour to stay hydrated.

Arrival Day Suggestions

If you have time before your tour to explore Athens, the capital of Greece and a city worshipped by gods and people — you will find plenty to do!

Athens brims over with sightseeing attractions, culture, history and delicious cuisine.

During your stay you may want to visit the popular National Archeological Museum, one of the best archaeology museums in the world. This wonderful museum houses a collection of art and artifacts like none other and is best known for collections of Cycladic, Mycenaean, and Classical Greek art. Another popular historical feature is the National Gallery, a small museum with the best selection of modern Greek and European art.

Perhaps visit the historic Plaka area for shopping and dining opportunities. A stroll through this neighborhood is a must for any visit to Athens. There are hundreds of shops where you will find just the right souvenir. There are also great restaurants, most providing outside seating year-round.

Between the metro system, bus transit, and taxi services available you will have plenty of options for getting around. Ask your concierge for suggestions if you are looking for ideas or directions.

Due to varied flight schedules and arrival times of our tour guests, there are no scheduled activities prior to dinner on arrival day. Should your flight schedule allow for an early arrival, enjoy this opportunity for some independent exploration.

If you are staying post tour, your Tour Manager will be available to offer suggestions for your additional time in the area.
